Park Valley Hereford Association
Park Valley, Utah

John,

We have a serious problem with the red gate giving access to our property, yours and other owners of nearby property. There has been a long standing multiple use road through this area. The Hereford Association and two or three of the users have chosen to keep the gate locked to keep the general public out and minimize vandalism and other problems to nearby private operation. From a practical sense this has worked out, but in reality access rights have been established over the course of time.

Since taking over the turquoise quarry operation from Glen Fuller we have experienced an increasing feeling of hostility from your association in spite of every attempt on our part to set up a feeling of cooperation and mutual respect. Additionally we have spent lots of money trying to accomodate your wishes without one penny of compensation. Glen Fuller did the same for 37 years.

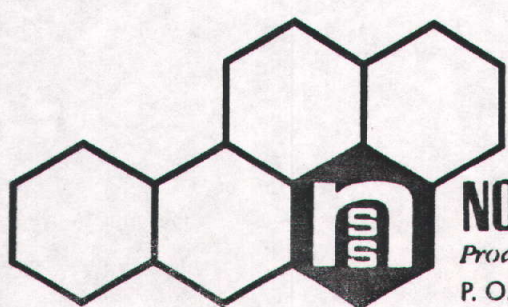

The most recent incidents concern an on going lock problem with the red gate. When I arrived on Monday 8/17 there was a short piece of chain and lock hanging on the fence that had been removed? When one of my workmen left on Friday 8/21 he discovered that our lock and a short section of chain had been removed. This made it necessary for him to cut the fence in order to exit the area. We assume that someone in your association has been involved with the various gate lock situations.

These interruptions to our flow of business are becoming serious and unless we get cooperation from your end we will be forced to take appropriate action.

Sincerely,

Gary Mullard
President
